Connells Point Public School celebrated its 75th anniversary in style last week, with pupils taking a step back in time. To mark the school’s 1934 opening, the children dressed in period costumes from various eras and played school-yard games common to the 1930s. Guest speakers were also invited, including ex-Wallabies great Phil Keams, and Neville Elms, who had been a kindergarten pupil in the school’s inaugural year.
